18-YEAR OLD ORIOLE CAR OUTLASTS OWNER

Do you recall the Oakland 33 Oriole Speedster whose low lines created a new vogue back in 1911?

Built a foot or two closer to the ground than its towering contemporary cars, the Oriole is credited with having sounded the knell of the high-wheeled, top-heavy stentors whose brass-bound glory previously had been accepted as the last word in automotive design.

The Oriole was radically new. It had low heels, open bucket seats leaning against a big cylindrical gas tank, an almost horizontal steering post and a hood strapped down over its big four-cylinder engine. The spare tire slanted rakishly aft.

The car followed closely the lines of the racing machines of that day in which Oldfield, DePalma, Totalet and Harroun were competing at speed of 70 to 75 miles an hour against such pilots as Bragg, Hughes and Bruce-Brown. During 1911 Oakland built 673 of these rakish Oriole Speedsters with the factory's limited production facilities always proving inadequate to meet demand.

Some of the Orioles competed in the speed contests and road races that were popular from 1909 to 1914. One of them was purchased in 1912 as a used car by Fred O. Grimes, veteran garage man of Hillsboro, Texas. Through the intervening 17 years the Oriole wore out four speedometers with a total mileage aggregating many hundreds of thousands of miles. During recent years the Oriole was utilized as a service car with which Mr. Grimes rescued countless automobiles from the mud roads in the country surrounding Hillsboro.

But last week Mr. Grimes drove the old Oriole Speedster to the Oakland Pontiac salesroom at Hillsboro.

"I'm afraid I'll have to turn her in on a new car," he said. "We—that is, the Oriole and myself—have grown old together. And still not exactly that, because I've grown old faster than the car. It has outlasted me. It is still in fine shape. But I'm not an any more. I've reached the age where I appreciate the comforts of a closed car and a self-starter."

He chose an Oakland All-American Six Convertible Cabriolet, very worthy descendant of a sturdy and spirited automotive ancestor.

The end of a perfect cigarette may start a conflagration.

ROLFE-LUXTON

Miss Clara L. Luxton and Bernard S. Rolfe both of West Bethel were married at the Congregational parsonage at Bethel, Saturday morning by Rev. Leonard A. Edwards. The double ring service was used.

The bride was married in a dress of white crepe de chine and her travelling dress was of brown flat crepe with accessories to match.

Mrs. Rolfe is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thaddeus Luxton of West Bethel and has attended Gould Academy the past three years. Mr. Rolfe is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Rolfe of West Bethel.

The couple left immediately on their wedding trip which will include visits to several places of interest in the state.

THE WORLD'S FAIR

The "World's Fair" was held Friday and Saturday with a small attendance Friday owing to the postponement of Fryeburg Fair. The fairs came in from Fryeburg late that afternoon and evening and Saturday morning the grounds were well covered with tents and a record breaking crowd was here Saturday.

Both the grange hall and I. O. O. F. Hall were used as exhibition halls and a wonderful display of farm products, fancy work and poultry were shown with the usual number of exhibitors. Waterford Grange, Bear Mountain Grange and Round Mountain Grange each had a fine exhibit. Bear Mountain winning first prize.

A large number of cattle were shown each day with some of the best pulling over, there were so many entries that they finished this sport Saturday morning. When Abbott of Norway and Thomas of Harrison were pulling off feet at a fast rate of speed the remark was made by George Stevens, time keeper, that he would have to get himself a motorcycle.

Meats were served by the Ladies Circle, Walter Lord and Will Rice and all did a good business.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES H. SWAN CELEBRATE FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF MARRIAGE

The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Swan of East Bethel was celebrated on Saturday, October 5. The day was ideal and the occasion was also sort of a family reunion.

After the greetings at the home in the later part of the forenoon, the line of march was formed with Mr. and Mrs. Swan leading, to Newton's Hall, where the tables were set and dinner was served to ninety-seven friends and relatives.

Following the dinner hour pictures were taken and the rest of the afternoon was spent in sociability, dancing and games. A small number of guests remained for supper, and the evening was spent at the Swan home. Two original poems were read during the day.

A table was set aside for the many lovely gifts which included a very handsome sum of money in gold.

Numerous letters and greetings were read from friends who were unable to attend. Besides those present from this vicinity, were guests from Providence, R. I., Haverhill and Lynn, Mass.

Mr. Swan and his wife, who was before marriage Miss Nina Mason, were married in 1879, when Mrs. Swan was fifteen years of age, and in March of the next year settled on the place at East Bethel where they have ever since lived. They have seven living children, twenty grandchildren and three great-grandchildren, all of whom were present on this occasion.

Mr. Swan is one of the children of the late Mr. and Mrs. Leander S. Swan, and his four living brothers and one sister were present, besides a host of other relatives and friends.

CENSUS EXAMINATIONS ANNOUNCED

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced that it will receive applications until November 2, 1929, for certain temporary positions in the Bureau of the Census in Washington, D. C., in connection with the Fifteenth Decennial Census.

The positions for which examinations are to be held are junior clerk, junior calculating machine operator, and junior tabulating machine operator, with an entrance salary of $1,440 a year, and under card-punch operator with an entrance salary of $1,260 a year.

These examinations are open to all citizens of the United States, both men and women, who meet the requirements. It is expected that a large number of appointments will be made. The length of service will probably range from one to two years in most cases but in no case will extend beyond December 31, 1932.

Full information regarding these examinations can be obtained from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., or from the Secretary of the United States Civil Service Board at the post office or customhouse in any city.

The condition of a lot of fellows who blantly and wantonly business in tell them how to run it business in dicates it is a good thing that it would be better if some one really told them a few things.

Gould Academy Notes

Miss Alice Mundi of the class of '22 was a guest at the school recently. Miss Mundi is employed as librarian in the Worcester Art Museum at Worcester, Mass.

Several students have expressed a desire to become a member of the Poetry Club which is to be organized for the purpose of creating an interest in the reading and writing of poetry. Dr. Charlotte Hammond of Paris Hill has offered a prize of twenty-five dollars to the pupil writing the best poem during this school year.

Plans are being formulated for the organization of a branch of the National Honor Society for the secondary schools. This society means in the secondary schools what Phi Beta Kappa means in college. Hence only students of the highest type are eligible.

The annual freshman reception was held at the William Bingham Gymnasium, Thursday evening, October 3. The Twentieth Century Club, consisting of the faculty and the Senior Class, sponsored the affair. Those in the receiving line were Dr. and Mrs. Gehring, Principal and Mrs. Frank Hanson, Miss Ella K. Litchfield, Miss Ruby Knapp, Senior Class secretary, and James Alger, Senior Class president. Principal Frank B. Hanson opened the program with a few appropriate words of welcome to the new students.

A song of welcome to the new students. A song of welcome written especially for the occasion, was sung by five upperclassmen; this was followed by a short skit which served as a prelude to a one act play entitled, "And the Lamp Went Out." The school orchestra rendered two selections. Refreshments were served and the remainder of the evening was devoted to dancing.

Several members from the class of 1929 visited the Academy over the week end. They were Eva Bartlett, Esther Holt, Mildred Heath, William Myers, Howard Douglas and Elton Glover. Miss Chapin, Carolyn Wheeler and Gilbert Brackett were also recent visitors on the campus.

HESTER POOL laid her hand on her son's shoulder and, bending down, looked anxiously into his face as he sat leaning back upon his hand. "That's the matter, dear?" she said. "She knew it could not be any of a sick feeling that was bothering her boy; he was never sick, nor an ailment of any kind since he had come down with the measles. No, it was not sickness, but must be trouble, and she wished to know if it was so, would make it easier for him."

He slowly threw his head back and looked up at his mother, his eyes fixed on her mother's blue ones, a look as if he were weighing the matter. Then pulling her gently by the arm, he drew her down upon his lap, and she saw that he was never so small as when he was a child. He was now and he such a great splendid described Jerry Pool—old of health and stature and a man in a thousand. No, he knew this, however, so well as he himself.

"Well, I'm going to tell you, mother," he said. "It is Eve."

He was a silence with ever widening circles of thought, as after a drop into water. At last Hester said: "Is Eve?"

"Yes, mother," he said. "It is Eve."

SAVE MONEY

Ownership of a Pontiac Big Six is an experience in economy. True, most people choose Pontiac, not because it is so inexpensive, but because of the many big car advantages which it provides. But it is a fact that with a Pontiac you actually save money. You save—

When you buy . . . When you drive . . . When you trade it in

You save when you buy a Pontiac because it is the lowest-priced car ever produced which offers so many advantages. You save when you drive because, according to a large corporation which employed 996 cars of 33 different makes during 1928, Pontiac costs one cent less per mile to operate than any other low-priced six. You save when you trade it in because the demand for used Pontiacs has always exceeded the available supply. Come in to see and drive the car which offers all these advantages.

Pontiac Big Six, $745 to $925, f. o. b. Pontiac, Mich., plus delivery charges. Bumpers, spring covers and Lavejoy shock absorbers regular equipment at slight extra cost. General Motors Time Payment Plan available at minimum rate.

Consider the delivered price as well as the list (f. o. b.) price when comparing automobile values. — Pontiac-Pontiac delivered prices include only authorized charges for freight and delivery and the charge for any additional accessories or financing desired.

Yallingup Caves One of Australia's Wonders

Yallingup, the site of the noted Yallingup caves, is usually referred to as West Australia's wonderland. As one approaches this resort from Busselton the view that greets the eye is that of sea and country. The hills about are covered with green bushes of all shades, while the beach is very unusual because of the little bars of sand which have been formed, inside of which are pools of translucent water, breast-high, clear, warm. The water as it breaks on the creamy sand is a clear blue-green, leaving a rainbow effect as it recedes. The sand and sea seem constantly to be changing color; for now the sand is pink and the water blue; a moment later the sand is mauve and the water pink. From the rocks along the shore one can see the fish swimming in the translucent water of the pools. One need seldom complain of ill luck, for the fish can be had for the asking. A bit of octopus almost invariably gets a response.

However, it is the wonderful caves found here which make Yallingup famous. The story is told how some twenty-five years ago a young man was riding through the scrub when his horse put his foot on the edge of a hole and just escaped a fall. The rider was naturally curious to inspect the opening, and, jumping off the animal, lowered himself into it. He took with him a handful of "black boy" which is a tiny little tree, highly resinous and producing an effective light.

The man found himself, after a drop of 30 feet, in a veritable dreamland. He saw stretching before him a new world of stalactites and stalagmites, looking like gracefully draped shawls hanging from the roof. These formations have come about from the continuously dripping water through the sandstone. When lighted from behind they are magnificent to look upon, being of soft cream color, with golden brown streaks through them.—New York Times.

The Golf Widow

George Von Elm, golf champion, said at a Newport luncheon:

"Golf widows are always complaining about their golfing husbands."

"Well, I heard a good one on a golf widow the other night."

"Her husband brought a friend home to dinner after a day on the links, and the two men naturally talked golf. When dinner was over the golf widow went upstairs to put her little ones to bed. She came down in about an hour, and as she walked into the dining room she heard her husband say something about 'a hole in one.'"

"Good gracious," she moaned, "are you still talking about golf?"

"No, dear," said the husband, "I'm talking about socks."

Or Playmate

Betty Parkins, age four, was being taught the names of the birds frequenting the garden. One bird she was told was the cardinal or red bird, and its mate. At a later time seeing one of the birds she said: "Mother, is that a red bird or its playmate?"

Graphic Outlines of History

SAN FRANCISCO IN 1848

In 1848, the discovery of gold was made in California. Immediately a rush started from the eastern states, in the hope of sudden wealth. In a year's time the population of California was large enough for a state. The people applied to Congress for admission to the Union, and the state was finally admitted in 1850.

Our ability to eliminate for you the myriad of details, is widely commented upon and appreciated.

Male Critics Severe on Work of Women Poets

If an effort were made to determine what elements constitute feminine poetry, one would name first its chief characteristic—subjectivity. When a woman writes poetry her emotions generally center around herself and she is only interested in the world as something that reflects favorably or unfavorably on her own individuality. It is usually favorable and when unfavorable willingly agonized, writes Herbert G. Brunchen, in the North American Review.

As an artist it is rarely that a woman can translate her emotions objectively; in other words to comprehend the world and the human beings that are part of it, not as they touch herself, but as they affect the great lot of humanity.

Feminine poetry, moreover, when it is cheerful, is generally so in a superficial way; it is too often over-refined through an erroneous and typically feminine conception of the difference between refinement and truth. It is embroidery poetry, very apt to be sentimental and cloyingly sweet.

And only in rare instances does one find a poem written by a woman where the unpleasantness and even tragic truths of human relationships have not been carefully censored or glossed over.

Great Men Who Toiled at Shoemaker's Bench

The occupation of shoemaking has furnished to the ranks of statesmen, philosophers and scholars many men famous for their abilities in later life. As an occupation which is conducive to reflection it no doubt tends to encourage and develop studious qualities wherever they exist by the gift of nature.

Nearly all modern civilized countries have possessed great and famous men who began life on the shoemaker's bench.

Roger Sherman, a patriot, jurist and statesman of high rank, worked at the shoemaker's trade until he was twenty-two years old. It is said that Sherman always kept a book open before him as he worked that he might not lose a single instant when the cessation of his duties gave him a chance to study. He became a judge, a congressman, a senator, and was considered in his time one of the wisest of American public men.

Whittier, the poet, and Henry Wadsworth, vice president of the United States, were also shoemakers. The lives of both men were a triumph over early disadvantages and their attainments always revealed keen sympathy with workers.

Germany produced two famous shoemakers. Hans Sachs of Nuremberg, the Minnesinger and early writer of German lyric poetry, and Johann Joachim Winckelmann, the historian of ancient art.

In England the shoemaker's bench graduated William Gifford, who became a distinguished editor, publicist and author.

Robert Bloomfield, a work shoemaker, was a popular poet, and his "The Farmer Boy" is still remembered. Another English shoemaker was Thomas Holcroft, man of letters and dramatist. Still another was John Brand, antiquary and clergyman. —New York Times.

Muskrats Plague Bohemia

American muskrats are overrunning Bohemia. Twenty years ago a few of these animals were taken to that country and established on a farm near Prague. Now millions are living in Bohemia and adjacent countries. Great damage has been done to vegetable gardens; native frogs and fish are being exterminated; even roads, dikes and railway embankments are suffering from the insistent burrows.
